A writing workshop becomes a living nightmare

17-year-old Toni travels to Scotland to take part in a workshop led by a bestselling author. At the remote manor house, the eccentric author reveals to the participants that he plans to leave his fortune to the most talented among them! The young hopefuls eagerly set to work.

But when a storm cuts them off from the outside world, strange things start to happen: the staff behave weirdly, someone wanders the corridors like a ghost, and there's a break-in. Toni, who sleepwalks, is plagued by nightmares and wakes one morning with a memory of their host covered in blood. Then he actually is found dead, and the line between dream and reality starts to blur...

HOTEL AMBROSIA has been on the SPIEGEL Bestseller list since March 2025 – now we bring you another page-turner by the same author

The grand finale of the SPIEGEL bestseller series

Lilly deGray narrowly escapes from the Scottish Highlands — but she's not out of the woods yet. Because Salem in 1692, at the beginning of the Salem witch trials, is a very dangerous place for a foreign young woman. She has no idea whether Damien and Collin have managed to escape too, and the search for the Pearl of Tortuga turns out to be far more difficult than she had expected. For the first time Lilly is time-travelling unprepared and without a plan — and time is running out...

What if your heart suddenly disagrees with your head?

Neve's life couldn't be better: she's been with her boyfriend Jay for four years, she loves her university course, and she's enjoying volunteering at the famous Kenwood House. She gives tours of the listed building and helps with its upkeep. But then Theo, the twin brother of her housemate Pippa, temporarily moves into their house-share and turns Neve's world upside down. She does her best to stay out of the way of Theo and his gorgeous brown eyes. But the chemistry between them is electric, and Neve is torn between her familiar love for Jay and her ever-stronger feelings for Theo...

Love strikes when you least expect it

Gemma has had enough: no more dates. And above all, no more disappointments. From now on she's going to prioritise herself. But then a video of her goes viral and makes her the laughing stock of the university. Of all people it's her neighbour Henry – a party animal and a pain in the neck – who helps her out of the mess she's in. But in return he asks Gemma to go with him to a family party and pose as his date! Reluctantly she agrees, though not without setting a few boundaries first. Rule number one: no catching feelings. Unfortunately, Henry is an extremely good kisser, and Gemma finds it increasingly difficult to separate what is real and what is fake. But what if Henry doesn't want to play by her rules?

Like first love – moving, real and summery

This is not how Neyla had pictured her summer. She'd wanted to spend time with her new friends. To enjoy not being a loner anymore. But now she has to spend the holidays with her dead mother's family in a little seaside village in Morocco. She hasn't been there since she was a kid! She doesn't feel any connection to the culture nor to this side of the family. And although they give her a warm welcome, she feels lost and like an outsider. Until she's reunited with Adam. Her best friend from childhood is all grown up now, and she gets butterflies when she sees him. But can she still trust him – and is her heart safe in his hands?

She's looking for a new job. He needs tutoring.
The perfect deal – until love gets in the way

Amber can't wait to finally leave her sleepy Irish town behind after graduation and travel the world. But when she suddenly loses her job, that dream seems to be slipping away. The solution: a deal with the school's bad boy. Josh is the star of the rugby team – daring, cheeky and convinced that the world is at his feet. But if he doesn't improve his grades soon, he'll be kicked off the rugby team and miss his chance at a professional career. Amber agrees to help Josh – after all, she needs the money. During the tutoring sessions, Josh takes every opportunity to throw Amber off balance, and his attempts at flirting get on her nerves. But little by little, she realises that there is much more to him than he shows the world. But when their past threatens to catch up with them, their feelings are put to the test...

She dreams of her first big story. He fights for victory.
And sometimes life writes the most exciting stories

Cara has her sights set on a career as a sports journalist. Her internship at the Hellington Post is her chance to show what she's made of. But instead of writing about her passion, rugby, she is sent to the European Swimming Championships in Dublin. Cara is desperate – she knows nothing about swimming! And she feels completely out of place at the poolside. Then she meets Luke, the star of the Irish national team. With a smile that breaks every record, he offers to explain the most important rules of swimming to her. Luke awakens feelings in her that she hadn't expected. But she senses the pressure weighing on him. Cara is also juggling her career dreams and family obligations. Together, they must find out whether their love is strong enough to withstand the current...
